Third Quarterly Report

103rd Fiscal Year

To Our Shareholders

December 2006

Nomura Holdings, Inc.

Table of Contents

To Our Shareholders

We are pleased to present a summary of our business for the third quarter that commenced October 1, 2006, and ended December 31, 2006.

During the third quarter, the Japanese economy remained firm, with continued strong capital investment activity and a gradual recovery in individual consumption compared with the second quarter, when consumption was negatively affected by unseasonable weather.

The stock market rose during the quarter, led by export-related stocks. There was a temporary period of softness in the market due to concern over the future of the Japanese and U.S. economies, but share prices subsequently increased, supported mainly by the extension of tax-breaks on equity investments, the Bank of Japan's decision to put off an interest rate hike, and a weakening yen.

In terms of third quarter consolidated results under US GAAP, consolidated net revenue was 322.9 billion yen and income before income taxes totaled 132.1 billion yen. Net income for the quarter was 79.1 billion yen, resulting in a consolidated return on equity (ROE) of 14.6%. These results were underpinned by an expansion in our investment trust business and recovery in market-related businesses.

The dividend for the third quarter will be 8 yen per share, the same as the second quarter.

During the third quarter we decided to make strategic investments in a U.S. investment management company and an agency broker. We are confident that these investments will be strategic stepping stones that will accelerate Nomura Group's growth. We will continue to strengthen synergies within the Group and pursue additional growth to deliver clients superior services and solutions to meet all investing needs and to remain a dominant player in the industry.

We look forward to your continued support.

Interview with Top Management

President and CEO Nobuyuki Koga

Q. What is the current environment surrounding your international business?

A. With regards to overseas business, there are currently three major trends in the market.

First, hedge funds and private equity funds are expanding their presence and having an increasingly large impact on the market.

Second, derivatives are being incorporated into all types of investment products globally. Up until recently, derivatives were generally regarded as specialized products, but they have now become an essential part of financial product origination, and strength in this area now largely determines which financial institutions are successful.

Third, BRICs (China, India, Russia, and Brazil) have emerged as markets with new business potential. In addition to these countries, emerging markets including of countries such as Vietnam and countries in Middle East are receiving investment from industrialized countries, resulting to a rapid expansion in their markets.

We are committed to respond effectively to this rapidly changing environment.

Q. Please explain the background and the objectives for the acquisition of Instinet, a major American agency broker.

A. Hedge funds and other institutional investors are increasingly concentrating their orders with securities companies offering comprehensive execution capabilities. As a result, in order to enhance our competitiveness with European and American investment banks, we must be able to provide high-quality services utilizing sophisticated financial technologies. We determined that building the systems and training people on our own would take too long, and that acquiring an established firm like Instinet would allow us to become competitive quickly.

Instinet is capable to electronically access over 50 trading markets in 31 countries using its proprietary execution management system, and executes customers' orders using sophisticated IT technology.

This acquisition will enable Nomura Group to provide clients with optimal execution-related services to go along with our superior research.

Demand for electronic trading is expected to dramatically increase in Europe, Asia, and other emerging markets. We will leverage Nomura Group's strong client base to realize synergies to achieve further growth.

Commissions for distribution of investment trusts grew 40.9% quarter-on-quarter, to 33.7 billion yen, which was a record high since we began reporting earnings on a quarterly basis. This was the result of strong sales of existing investment trusts offering frequent distributions as well as newly launched funds such as the Asia Attractive Dividend Stock Fund. With the steady growth of assets in stock investment trusts, investment trust administration fees grew to 12.1 billion yen, the eighth consecutive quarterly increase. Revenue from stock brokerage commissions grew 19.8% quarter-on-quarter to 22.6 billion yen.

Asset Management

Assets under management increased during the quarter, continuing to contribute to the growth in profits. The posting of both calendar year-end performance fees and unrealized gains from seed money for new product development helped boost profits as well. Investment trust sales remained strong in the quarter. Sales of the My Story Profit Distribution-type Fund (B Course), funds distributed through banks, particularly those offering frequent distributions, and the Nomura Global 6 Assets Diversified Fund being distributed through Japan Post all continued their strong pace of sales. The Asia Attractive Dividend Stock Fund launched during the quarter and other newly-launched funds also enjoyed strong sales.

Total assets under management for the Asset Management division stood at 25.6 trillion yen at the end of December, a 2.6 trillion yen increase from the end of September.

Other

Income before income taxes was 43.1 billion yen for the three months ended December 31, 2006, mainly related to the IPO of Nomura Real Estate Holdings.
