AVG Technologies Announces Change to Executive Leadership Team

AMSTERDAM and SAN FRANCISCO March 7, 2013 AVG Technologies N.V. (NYSE: AVG), the provider of Internet and mobile security, privacy and optimization to 146 million active users, today announced that J.R. Smith has resigned as CEO and will become a member of the Supervisory Board. He will remain as CEO until a successor is named. The Company has retained SPMB, a leading executive search firm, to find a successor. The search will include a full review of both internal and external candidates.

J.R. has been a visionary leader for AVG. He transformed the company from a small European antivirus company to a successful publicly traded global leader in PC and mobile solutions, said Dale Fuller, Chairman of the Supervisory Board of AVG. The board is grateful to J.R. for his leadership and valuable contributions. We look forward to his role as Supervisory Board member.

During my six years as CEO I am proud of what we've accomplished: substantially growing the customer base, delivering strong financial performance, successfully leading our IPO and building a world class business and management team, said JR Smith, CEO. Having grown the company to this stage, I feel the time is right to turn over the reins. I am looking forward to continuing to contribute as a member of the Supervisory Board knowing that the company is well positioned for future success.
