MEDIA RELEASE

Kloof Gold Mine achieves a million fatality-free shifts

Johannesburg, June 25, 2008: Gold Fields Limited (“Gold Fields”) (NYSE, JSE, DIFX: GFI) is pleased to report that its Kloof gold mine, near Westonaria on the West Rand today achieved one million fatality-free shifts.

The milestone was achieved with the completion of the night shift early today and has taken 51 working days of dedication, teamwork, and commitment to safety procedures and best practices in mining.

Rodney Hart, the vice president and head of operations at Kloof, praised the employees for their significant achievement which he said had been brought about by “a change of attitude towards our own and the safety of our team members”.

Nick Holland, the chief executive of Gold Fields, said:

“The one million fatality-free shifts at Kloof demonstrates that safe working can be achieved at deep-level gold mines. It has also given a significant boost to our safety efforts throughout all our operations following the very unfortunate accidents we had earlier this year. Safety remains the number one priority within Gold Fields and we are currently conducting a comprehensive audit of our safety practices and safety performance at our mines in South Africa. If we can go for more than 50 days at a deep-level mine such as Kloof without one fatal injury, then I firmly believe that our goal of having zero fatalities on all Gold Fields mines can be realised.”

Kloof employs approximately 15,000 people and mining takes place at depths of up to 3 kilometres. The previous one million fatality-free shifts at Kloof was achieved on 4 April, 2006.
