Who We Are

Invesco 2007 Annual Review

Letter to Shareholders

Dear Fellow Shareholder:

At the beginning of 2006, we announced a set of strategic initiatives that were designed to build momentum in our business and unlock the tremendous potential of our global organization. To focus our efforts on the greatest opportunities for taking our business forward, we reaffirmed four strategic priorities of our long-term success:

§ Achieving strong investment performance;

§ Delivering our investment capabilities anywhere in the world to meet client needs;

§ Unlocking the power of our global operating platform;

§ Building a high-performance organization.

Over the past two years, we have accomplished what we set out to do: build momentum back into our business and enhance the client experience. All the work that has been accomplished over the past two years has resulted in clear improvements for our shareholders in AUM (assets under management), operating income, net operating margin and EPS (earnings per share).

As a result of our continued focus on our long-term strategy, we are pleased to report that your company delivered record earnings of $673.6 million in 2007. Diluted earnings per share were $1.64, an increase of 37.8% over the prior year. Total dividends for 2007, including a final dividend of $0.22 per share, were $0.384 per share, an increase of 6.1% over 2006. Net operating margin for 2007 was 36%. Assets under management ended the year at $500.1 billion, up 8.1% from 2006.

A strategic name change

A key milestone for our company in 2007 was the change in our name to better reflect our position as an integrated, global investment management organization. With the approval of our shareholders, we became Invesco (formerly, AMVESCAP), a brand recognized in every market in which we operate and a name that reflects our focus on investment management. Later in the year, we introduced a new company identity that will help Invesco stand out in an increasingly crowded marketplace. Building on brand work Invesco Perpetual has developed over the past 25 years, Invesco adopted the iconic mountain imagery for our new company logo.

Invesco 2007 Annual Review

Primary listing moves to the NYSE

Another critical initiative in 2007 was the transition of our listing to the New York Stock Exchange. This move instantly raised Invesco's visibility in the U.S. market, and will provide greater clarity regarding our financial performance for investors. Just as importantly, it has given us deeper and broader access to the world's largest and most liquid market.

These significant achievements further support our efforts to improve our competitive position as a global investment management organization. During the year, we made additional progress in other areas as a result of our continued focus on our strategic priorities.

Achieving strong investment performance

Invesco is committed to achieving strong investment performance over the long term. In 2007, we took steps that reinforced our investment culture and improved our ability to deliver investment excellence for our clients.

We are dedicated to being a place of investors, for investors. As part of our efforts to further strengthen our investment culture, we enhanced the role of our Investors Forum. The Investors Forum gives our investment professionals a chance to share ideas and best practices across our organization. The expanded communication provided through the Investors Forum also increases their ability to provide superior investment performance for our clients by drawing on the knowledge and experience of other investment professionals across our global organization.

Our commitment to investment excellence starts with our disciplined and distinct investment processes. In 2007, we took steps that further reward our investment teams for sticking to their disciplines and delivering strong investment performance over the long term. These moves further align the interests of our investment teams with those of our clients.

We also took steps to enhance our ability to oversee and measure investment performance across the company as part of our goal to build a world-class performance measurement and risk analysis platform. This effort underscores our commitment to a disciplined investment process and will help our organization and our clients better understand our products, performance and risk.

Looking at the firm as a whole, Invesco had very strong investment performance in 2007. A combined view of the investment performance of our retail assets versus peers and our institutional assets versus benchmark shows that 70% of our AUM have a very strong 3-year track record (as of Dec. 31, 2007).

Invesco 2007 Annual Review

Delivering our investment capabilities anywhere in the world to meet client needs

During 2007, we made further progress in delivering our investment capabilities to our clients around the world. Throughout the year, Invesco PowerShares expanded the range and availability of our exchange-traded funds (ETFs). These products complement our existing product line and, with their competitive expense ratios and convenience, have experienced growing popularity. With the fourth-quarter launch of Invesco PowerShares into the U.K. and Continental Europe, Invesco is now uniquely positioned to compete in the market for ETFs globally. Invesco PowerShares managed approximately $14.5 billion in assets as of December 31, 2007, and also sponsored the $26.7 billion QQQs, offering investors a branded suite of products exceeding $41 billion and more than 100 domestic and international ETFs.

In 2007 we also brought our fixed income and cash teams together to form the new Invesco Worldwide Fixed Income group. The move to a single fixed income organization was designed to increase our global scale, provide greater clarity for our clients and enhance our ability to compete. The combined organization now ranks as one of the world's largest, with assets of nearly $150 billion (as of Dec. 31, 2007), and offers a comprehensive range of products that few competitors can match.

WL Ross & Co. assumed responsibility for our direct private equity business in 2007. Led by Wilbur Ross, the group is one of the most recognized distressed and restructuring investors in the industry. Their most recent offering, WLR Recovery Fund IV, raised $4 billion—nearly two times their original goal—a significant accomplishment that brought together the resources of our global organization. Our success in this area is a prelude to the many global opportunities we see on the horizon.

Unlocking the power of our global operating platform

Over the past two years, Invesco has made significant progress in unifying its global operating platform. In 2007, we took additional steps to build on this progress and strengthen our ability to work as an integrated, global organization. The global trading initiative we began in 2007 is designed to combine our trading as a global institution. Over time, this effort will give us greater market access, providing benefits for our investment teams and our clients. We also implemented leading technology that will enable us to manage securities more efficiently as a global organization and provide better information more quickly to our investment teams and clients.

We also took steps to improve communications with our clients. A new client reporting platform introduced in 2007 provides a comprehensive, web-based reporting tool for our U.S. institutional clients and will be made available for clients worldwide soon. Clients have responded positively to the simplicity and convenience of this new approach to reporting on their investments.

Invesco 2007 Annual Review

Building a high-performance organization

One of our five business principles is, People are the foundation of our success. In support of this principle, Invesco has made a strong commitment to people development, which we view as critical to our long-term success. During 2006, we introduced a number of programs to help our people further develop their potential. Over the past year, we made enhancements to these programs and expanded their availability.

Our People Development team introduced a curriculum of courses that enable individuals to sharpen their skills and equip them to improve their career opportunities. We also launched the Management Development Program, which gives our people the training, feedback and networking resources to become better managers.

Also in 2006, we introduced a Talent Management Process (TMP) to provide a more comprehensive view of the technical, managerial and leadership skills present across our organization, while strengthening the pool of high performers who will be integral to our long-term success. During 2007, we expanded the pool of individuals included in the process and used the TMP to fill critical roles within our organization.

Investing in our future

Throughout the year, we remained committed to executing our comprehensive plan and investing for growth. Our focus on continuous improvement gave us the resources to invest in the long-term success of our business. These resources were reinvested in the business to support our expansion in key markets, launch new products, enhance our infrastructure and retain and motivate high-performing employees. We remain focused on making further improvements in 2008, which will give us the flexibility to continue investing for long-term growth.

Our business is much stronger today, which puts Invesco in a better position to improve our competitive position and take advantage of opportunities in a turbulent market environment. Going forward, we remain committed to our multi-year plan as a means of further unlocking the tremendous potential of our global investment management organization.

Sincerely,

Rex D. Adams
