Form N-30B-2

April 30, 2001

Dear Shareholder:

First Quarter Review

Despite the initial market surge in January after Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo was installed as the Philippines' new president, the Philippine stock market continued to contract on a quarterly basis. In the first quarter of 2001, the Philippine composite index (Phisix), the Fund's benchmark, declined by 2.0% in US dollar terms. While the market's decline is slight and is in fact the market's best performance in five quarters, the significant gains achieved in mid-January and sustained until mid-February were reversed.

Political concerns lingered. Former President Joseph Estrada's petition with the Supreme Court challenging the legitimacy of the Arroyo administration weighed down sentiment. The Supreme Court has since ruled in favor of the current government. With the ruling, Mr. Estrada loses immunity from suit and has been arrested on charges of economic plunder. In the meantime, elections are scheduled on May 14 for thirteen senators as well as all members of Congress and local government officials. The government needs to secure a majority in Congress in order to be able to pass and implement its reform agenda most efficiently. Recent surveys have indicated that this outcome is likely.

The macroeconomic issues facing the government remain daunting, but early indications appear positive. The budget deficit for the first two months of the year fell within programmed levels, with the success due more to spending cuts rather than revenue generation. Interest rates have been cut by 550 basis points since their peak last year, and the peso, while showing a recent weakening alongside the yen, has remained generally stable at around P50 per US dollar.

Corporate earnings for 2000 were expectedly weak as a result of declining margins, hefty provisioning, foreign exchange losses and high interest costs, especially during the fourth quarter of 2000. While an earnings recovery is expected for 2001 and forecast earnings were upgraded after People Power II, these forecasts remain at risk from the projected slowing of the country's macroeconomic growth.

The weakness of the US and Japanese economies took center stage in the latter part of the first quarter and the Philippine stock market declined in tandem with global markets.

First Philippine Fund Performance

The First Philippine Fund Inc.'s (Fund) per share net asset value (NAV) declined by 6.67% in the past quarter to US$4.06. Reflecting the volatility of its underlying market, the Fund's total net assets reached its peak in the quarter at US$54.7 million in mid-February 2001 before contracting to US$45.5 million at the quarter's end. The Fund's share price closed at $3.20 on March 30, declining by 5.19% in the quarter.

The Fund's performance relative to its benchmark came largely as a result of its highly conservative posture during a sharp Philippine market rally in January. With its large cash position (9.9% of the portfolio at the start of the quarter) and low exposure to Philippine securities (76.3% of the portfolio), the Fund expectedly fell behind after the market spike in the days after People Power II. It was, however, able to reduce the gap in the remainder of the quarter while the Philippine market was consolidating.

In the last few months, the Fund adopted the following significant changes:

- o In the December 2000 semi-annual report, the Fund indicated it would liquidate its non-Philippine portfolio and raise investments in Philippine securities. This was achieved by the end of the first quarter. Investments in Philippine securities were raised from 76.3% of the portfolio at the end of the December 2000 quarter to 90.5% at the end of the March 2001 quarter.
- o The Fund's Board of Directors, in its last meeting on April 26, authorized an aggressive and continuing share repurchase program over the next two years of up to 20% of the Fund's outstanding shares. The Board is optimistic that, over time, the buyback program will help to narrow the discount the Fund's shares trade to its NAV.

Market Outlook

Going forward, we expect the market to remain muted due to various uncertainties - the need to consolidate political power bases, the challenges of the domestic economy, and the impact of a global slowdown. In general, investors are in a wait-and-see posture for more positive indicators after the May elections. The market's consolidation, however, has opened attractive opportunities for further rebuilding of the portfolio. The Fund will pursue a bargain-hunting strategy, accumulating discounted blue chips at attractive valuations, in anticipation of a post-election run up, and a possible pick-up in global markets by the second half of the year.

Even after the recent dramatic changes in the Philippines, there will undoubtedly remain many political and economic challenges ahead. The road will remain bumpy. Yet, we are confident the country is moving in the right direction - towards transparency and good governance, a rule of law applied to all, and reforms to create a level playing field.

Thank you for your continued support of The First Philippine Fund.

Sincerely,

/s/ Lilia C. Clemente
