Dear Destination Maternity Team,

Many of you have been asking about voting in the upcoming Annual Meeting of Stockholders, so I wanted to address some of the most common questions we have received and clarify a few logistical items with regards to the voting process.

Many current Destination employees have received restricted stock from the Company over the course of their employment history. Those of you who have been here for less than a year will likely only have unvested shares of restricted stock (i.e. cannot yet be sold or transferred to another party), while those with longer tenures at Destination will have both unvested and fully vested shares. In addition, some of you may have received options.

Am I able to vote either my vested and/or unvested stock?

Their answer is YES. You have the right to vote BOTH your unvested and vested shares. The only relevant difference is how you go about voting these different share classifications. Employees' unvested shares are kept/held in an account managed by the Company, while fully vested shares will have been transferred to a brokerage account in the name of the individual. As these two types of shares are in two distinct buckets, it is likely that many of you who hold Destination stock will need to vote TWICE (once for vested, once for unvested).

I have options, am I able to vote those?

Options are different than shares of restricted stock. Options represent a right to receive shares if the holder pays a certain exercise price to the Company to buy the underlying shares. If you hold options (even if they are vested options) you do NOT have a right to vote the underlying shares. If you exercised options at any point and still hold the shares (which is very rare since most people sell the shares at the time they exercise an option), you would have shares to vote.

I received two sets of proxy materials from the Company, what do I do?

Those of you with both vested and unvested shares will be receiving two sets of every communication sent by the Company and the dissident shareholder group. Solicitation materials related to your unvested shares will come directly to you from the sender via traditional mail, while the identical materials related to vested shares will be delivered by means of traditional mail or email from your investment broker (very likely Wells Fargo).

To that end, if you have been with Destination for over a year and you have ONLY voted once, there is a very high probability that you have NOT voted all the shares to which you are entitled.

Since I work for the Company, will my shares be voted by default?

NO, there is no such thing as a default vote if you do not actively exercise your right to vote your shares, the Company does not receive your vote. That is why it is all the more important for our employee stockholders (and, more broadly, all stockholders) to vote! Our Board of Directors strongly urges you to vote FOR Destination's slate of incumbent Director candidates Barry Erdos, Melissa Payner-Gregor, Peter Longo and Pierre-André Mestre on the WHITE proxy card, and disregard any Gold proxy card provided by the Miller Group.

Who do contact if I have questions on how to vote my shares?

If you have any questions (e.g. not sure if you have already voted, not sure you've voted all of your shares) or require assistance in voting your WHITE proxy card please contact Okapi Partners, the Company's proxy solicitor, at the phone numbers or email listed below.
