Cleveland-Cliffs Inc published a news release on November 6, 2007 as follows:

Cleveland-Cliffs Announces Management Changes

Duke Vektor Promoted to Senior Vice President – North American Coal

David Blake Promoted to Vice President, Operations – North American Iron Ore

CLEVELAND—Nov. 6, 2007—Cleveland-Cliffs Inc (NYSE: CLF) today announced the promotions of Duke Vektor to the position of senior vice president – North American Coal and David Blake to the position of vice president, operations – North American Iron Ore. The appointments come as part of Cliffs' continuing integration of PinnOak Resources, Inc., which the Company acquired at the end of July. Ronald Stovash, president and CEO of PinnOak Resources, will be leaving the company to pursue other opportunities.

In his new role, which is effective immediately, Vektor is responsible for PinnOak's corporate offices in Canonsburg, Pa., the Pinnacle Complex in West Virginia and Oak Grove mine in Alabama. He previously served as Cliffs' vice president, operations – North American Iron Ore, a position he had held since July 2006. Vektor has nearly 30 years' experience in operational roles at mines, both with Cliffs and Rio Tinto, where he was most recently vice president of operations at Diavik Diamond Mines in Canada.

Blake, in his new capacity, will head Cliffs' operating activities at the Company's six North American Iron Ore mines. He previously served as general manager, Michigan operations, and had responsibility for the Empire and Tilden mines, as well as Cliffs' LS&I Railroad.

Joseph A. Carrabba, Cliffs' chairman, president and chief executive officer, commented, "Duke and David both have the requisite operational expertise and experience implementing business improvement initiatives to serve our North American business well. Each has an established track record of quickly achieving operating goals and I look forward to their continuing contributions."

Vektor and Blake will report to Donald Gallagher, Cliffs' President, North American business unit.
