Federal Communications Commission Approves CenturyLink-Savvis Merger

MONROE, La., and ST. LOUIS The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) today approved the pending merger between CenturyLink, Inc. (NYSE: CTL) and Savvis, Inc. (NASDAQ: SVVS). The merger previously received an early termination notice under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act from the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission.

We are pleased to receive the FCC's approval and appreciate the Commission's prompt review of our request, said Glen F. Post, III, chief executive officer and president of CenturyLink. The combination of CenturyLink's hosting and network assets with Savvis' proven solutions in colocation, managed hosting and cloud services substantially enhances CenturyLink's data services capabilities and provides the company with a solid platform for future growth.

By leveraging CenturyLink's leading network capabilities and relationships with businesses across the United States, Savvis is positioned for leadership in meeting the growing customer demand for outsourced IT and cloud services, and can deliver these services to a broader base of customers at an accelerated pace, said James E. Ousley, chairman and chief executive officer of Savvis. We look forward to using our world-class platform to provide customers with innovative solutions to meet the challenges of today, tomorrow and many years to come.

The companies expect to begin combining operations later this year. This integrated hosting business, which will operate under the Savvis brand for the foreseeable future, will be based in St. Louis and led primarily by key members of the Savvis leadership team, including Ousley, who will head the unit.
