12 The Company's April 2014 Investor Presentation used inappropriate peers in what we believe was an attempt to whitewash the Board's dreadful performance

II. GRAFTECH'S ATTEMPT TO WHITEWASH UNDERPERFORMANCE Redefining the Board

Peer Group Selection SaveGrafTech's selection of GrafTech's peers was based on their graphite electrode production capacity and whether graphite electrodes is their core business 14 Ticker: TSE:5301 Headquartered in Japan Founded in 1918 100,000 metric ton production capacity Ticker: DB:SGL Headquartered in Germany Founded in 1872 180,000 metric ton production capacity Ticker: BSE:509631 Headquartered in India Founded in 1972 8 0,000 metric ton production capacity Ticker: BSE:509488 Headquartered in India Founded in 1962 98,000 metric ton production capacity Source: Capital IQ; GrafTech Investor Presentation (April 2014)

The Company Has Selected Inappropriate Peers The Company has selected as their "Industry Peers" SGL Carbon, Tokai Carbon, Graphite India, HEG Limited, IBIDEN, Showa Denko, Mersen , Toyo Tanso , and Nippon Carbon We believe IBIDEN , Showa Denko, Mersen , Toyo Tanso , and Nippon Carbon are not comparable peers for assessing GrafTech's underperformance These companies' core business is not graphite electrode production Is it a coincidence that all but one of these company's underperformed GrafTech's TSR over a 5 - year period? 1 15 1 Source: Bloomberg

17 Source: Bloomberg (as of the Company's selected period end date of December 31, 2014); weighted by market cap; GrafTech Investor Presentation (April 2014) The 5 - Year TSR of GrafTech's inappropriate additions to the peer group underperformed GrafTech by 11.6% Peer Group Selection Is it a coincidence that including these inappropriate companies into their "Industry Peer" Group makes GrafTech look better? Why did the Company add these five to the "Industry Peer" Group in their April 2014 Investor Presentation?

The Company Selected an Inappropriate Date to Stop the Clock 18 The Company selected the end of its fiscal year as the date to stop the clock on its total shareholder return Why did the Company leave out 3 - and 10 - year TSR? We believe the appropriate date to use is January 7, 2014, which reflects the unaffected closing price prior to SaveGrafTech's Schedule 13 - D/A filing on January 8th Source: GrafTech April 2014 Presentation, page 8

GrafTech Cherry - Picks Dates and Omits Key Information We believe revenues from the acquisition of C/G Electrodes and Seadrift account for much of the Company's revenue growth, and this table ignores the steady decline in revenues from 2011 to 2014 We believe declines in Operating Cash Flow and Market Cap do not indicate a "Strengthened Business Model" 19 Source: GrafTech April 2014 Presentation, page 7

Management's Own Data Refute Absurd Projections In their haste to prove that market retreat will somehow build shareholder value, the Company's math reveals expected shipment volumes to DECLINE AGAIN in 2014 from 2013A: $255K \times 77\% = 196$ K shipments To 2014E: $195K \times 90\% = 176$ K shipments How likely are Management's 2014 EBITDA projections? III . ADDRESSING GRAFTECH'S MISINFORMATION CAMPAIGN Redefining the Board

Instead of engaging in a substantive discussion about the performance and strategy of the business, the current Board is wasting shareholder funds to make unsubstantiated personal attacks against Mr. Milikowsky and members of his family

Mr. Milikowsky offered to have an independent law firm review the findings of the Company's investigation, confident that those findings did not support the Company's conclusions. If the Company were confident in the findings of its own investigation, why did it reject Mr. Milikowsky's offer? And why would it propose yet another, expensive, time consuming, litigation - like investigation?

“I have nothing to hide from anyone – GrafTech, lawyers, regulators, or shareholders. The Company has already engaged in an investigation, yet has presented no evidence to substantiate their public statements about me.” - Nathan Milikowsky, Save GrafTech Nominee
